DTP Alumni, Elizabeth Gamarra selected as U.S Youth Ambassador at the Osaka World Expo

Elizabeth Katherine Gamarra, a DTP alumna, will proudly represent the United States at this year's World Expo in Osaka, Japan, serving at the American Pavilion. The World Expo, held every five years, is a globally significant event that unites nations to showcase advancements in innovation, culture, and solutions to some of humanity's most pressing challenges. The 2025 Expo, themed "Designing a Future Society for Our Lives," emphasizes global collaboration and envisions a sustainable, inclusive future.

The Expo provides a dynamic platform for nations to exchange ideas and address critical global issues, including climate change, education, and technology. Drawing millions of visitors from around the world, it fosters dialogue among policymakers, innovators, and citizens, creating opportunities to advance solutions to pressing inequities. The American Pavilion will not only serve as a hub of innovation and creativity but also as a beacon for advancing the universal importance of safeguarding human rights. Therefore, Gamarra's role at the Expo will leave a lasting legacy, showcasing the transformative power of cultural exchange and underscoring the critical role of human rights in shaping a more just and equitable future for all.

As part of the U.S. delegation, Gamarra will play a pivotal role in representing the nation at the American Pavilion, where she will engage with diverse international audiences. Her efforts will focus on promoting equality, innovation, and the importance of human rights, embodying DTP's mission to inspire understanding and cooperation.

The comprehensive training she received through the DTP fellowship has equipped her with the skills and insights necessary for this prestigious role, enabling her to approach global challenges with empathy, diplomacy, and a commitment to collaboration. Gamarra is both honored and excited to leverage this opportunity to make a meaningful impact on the global stage.
